DREF operation n° MDRTJ010
GLIDE n° FL-2010-000087-TJK
12 May 2010

The International Federation's Disaster Relief Emergency Fund (DREF) is a source of un-earmarked money created by the Federation in 1985 to ensure that immediate financial support is available for Red Cross and Red Crescent emergency response. The DREF is a vital part of the International Federation's disaster response system and increases the ability of National Societies to respond to disasters.

CHF 184,879 (USD 167,613 or EUR 129,833) has been allocated from the International Federation's Disaster Relief Emergency Fund (DREF) to support the National Society in delivering immediate assistance to some 200 families (1,200 people) and to replenish emergency stocks. Unearmarked funds to repay DREF are encouraged.

Summary: Torrential rains on 7 May, 2010 caused floods and mudslides in the southern part of Tajikistan. In total 10 districts were affected, including Vose, Muminabad, Temurmalik, Baljuvon and Shurabad districts and Kulyab town of Kulyab region, as well as Nurek, J. Rumi, Yovon and Jilikul districts of Kurgan-tube region. According to preliminary data from the Tajikistan Red Crescent regional branches, the number of houses affected by the disaster in the two regions is around 1,097 houses (or 6,354 people), out of which 369 houses were totally destroyed and 384 houses partly damaged. According to official data from the government, some 16 people are reported to be killed by the floods, 40-50 people are missing, 40 people were hospitalized and 85 injured.

The National Society will assist the 200 most affected households through the distribution of basic non-food items to help them cope with the consequences of the disaster.

This operation is expected to be implemented over four months, and will therefore be completed by 11 September; a Final Report will be made available three months after the end of the operation (by 11 December 2010).

The situation

As a result of heavy rains on 7 May, 2010 the southern part of Tajikistan has been affected by floods and mudslides. Some 10 districts in two regions of the country have been affected, with around 1,097 houses (with 6,354 inhabitants) damaged, out of which 369 houses have been totally destroyed and 384 houses partially damaged. According to official data from the government, some 16 people were killed by the floods.

People from the affected areas have been evacuated by joint efforts of the Committee of Emergency Situations and Civil Defence (CoES), Russian military forces, the Tajikistan Red Crescent national disaster response team and local population.

Affected people are mainly hosted by their relatives and neighbours; some of them were evacuated to governmental buildings and mosques. The majority of displaced people were evacuated to the Kulyab town bus station.

The Red Crescent Society of Tajikistan has started providing first aid and psychosocial support through its national disaster response team.

The country was already affected by floods in early April this year, when heavy rains caused flooding in around 18 villages throughout Tajikistan. The Tajikistan Red Crescent received a DREF allocation to support the response to this disaster in April and provided assistance to the 120 most affected families.

Thanks to the disaster management centres established in both Kulyab and Kurgan-tube regions with national disaster response teams composed of 12 trained people each and equipped with response equipments, tools, transport, communication and computers, the Tajikistan Red Crescent has been able to respond to this second flooding even though it occurred very soon after the previous floods. Besides national disaster response teams local disaster committees are established in each administrative centre and are ready to respond during the immediate aftermath of any disaster.

Coordination and partnerships

An operational point was set up immediately upon the call of the Committee of Emergency Situations and Civil Defence (CoES) on 7 May in Kulyab and Kurgan-tube regions. Local authorities, the Red Crescent branches with support from the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (IFRC), CoES branches, the Rapid Emergency Assessment and Coordination Team (REACT)¹ secretariat and Russian military forces have responded to the disaster by evacuating people to safer places and cleaning houses, roads, conducting needs and damage assessment, rendering first aid and psychosocial support.

¹ REACT is a local disaster management coordination mechanism between the government, UN agencies, the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement, non-governmental organizations and the private sector.

On 7 May 2010, two coordination meetings initiated by the CoES of Kulyab district were conducted together with representatives of the Red Crescent Kulob branch, WFP, UNDP and INGO Oxfam, the hukumat² chairman and local authorities.

The assessment of the situation and the needs of the affected people has been initiated by CoES in close cooperation with the local authorities, the Red Crescent Society of Tajikistan and REACT members. Beneficiary lists are being prepared so that relief assistance could start.

Red Cross and Red Crescent action

The Red Crescent Society of Tajikistan have mobilized eight local disaster committees and two national disaster response teams (in total 160 trained staff and volunteers) in the affected areas for conducting situation assessments and providing first aid and psychosocial support as well as relief assistance to the people in need. They have been also assisting people in the evacuation activities.

The disaster response coordinator and the emergency officer from the headquarters of the National Society have been supporting the response activities.

Since there was more need for support of the Kulyab national disaster response team in its disaster response activities, five national disaster response team members from the Kurgan-tube Red Crescent branch were deployed and sent to Kulyab to support the response operations in the affected areas.

The Dushanbe city national disaster response team is on standby and ready to be deployed to the affected areas in any time.

Non-food items including tents for 40 households were transported from the disaster preparedness stock in the Dushanbe central warehouse to Kulyab district. 10 households will be provided with tents and non-food items from the warehouse in Kurgan-tube. At this very first stage of the response activities, in total 50 households will be provided with tents and non-food items including beddings, kitchen utensils, hygiene kits, and water storage facilities like jerry cans and buckets.

Needs assessments are ongoing, and meanwhile the Tajikistan Red Crescent is also mobilizing its resources for response activities.

Based on the information gathered through the situation and needs assessment the National Society disaster response team is preparing distribution lists together with the local authorities. The immediate needs of the affected population are mainly for shelter and non-food items, such as bedding sets, blankets, quilts, hygiene kits, water storage facilities and kitchen utensils.

By early morning 9 May a Red Crescent tent camp was set up near the bus station in Kulyab town and 50 households were moved to the camp. Two first-aid points and an operational point was set up in Kulyab town stadium where a tent camp for 200 families was set up by other REACT partners.

The needs

According to the preliminary data collected by CoES and the Red Crescent regional disaster response team the basic needs of the affected people are for shelter and non-food items. Out of the 1,097 affected households in the 10 districts, the Red Crescent Society is planning to assist the 200 most affected households (1,200 people) with basic non-food items from its emergency stock. The table below gives an overview of the relief items planned to be distributed to the families.
